KnowItAll Spectroscopy Software (No. 6)

Get to know the KnowItAll software solution for spectral analysis, identification, and search; it has many benefits over the popular KnowItAll AnyWare web interface.

Speaker: Dr. Jozica Dolenc

Tuesday, 20.6.23

Find standards with norml (No. 50)

Do you need standards from DIN, ISO, or other agencies? We will show you how to access the full text of currently applicable standards using the new norml database.

Speaker: Andrej Kilian

Wednesday, 21.6.23

Visualize research networks with VOSViewer (No. 66)

Do you want to find the key papers holding a field together or papers highly relevant across disciplines? Or learn something about connections among authors, journals, or subjects? Visual connections of papers as networks give new insights.

Speaker: Andrej Kilian

Thursday, 22.6.23

Topics alerts – where and how to set them (No. 1)

You want to be well-informed about what is happening in your research area? We show you where and how you can set alerts to find out as quickly as possible what friends and enemies are publishing.

Speaker: Dr. Oliver Renn

Tuesday, 27.6.23

Manchester Academic Phrasebank (No. 37)

Are you struggling with writing the first draft of your manuscript? The free online Manchester Academic Phrasebank contains hundreds of English phrases typically used in research papers.

Speaker: Dr. Gina Cannarozzi

Complete and expand your collection of Coffee Lecture cards.

Wednesday, 28.6.23

Embace – Pubmed on steroids (No. 67)

Are you unsuccessful when searching for pharmaceutical compounds, medical devices, or pharmacovigilance data in PubMed? Have you tried Embace?

Speaker: Dr. Gina Cannarozzi

Thursday, 29.6.23

Prediction of physico-chemical and ADME properties with ACD/Percepta (No. 18)

Do you need to estimate your molecule's octanol-water partition coefficient or pKa value? Would you like to screen several compounds based on predicted ADME properties? ACD/Percepta makes this possible within minutes.

Speaker: Dr. Jozica Dolenc
